

KATTY

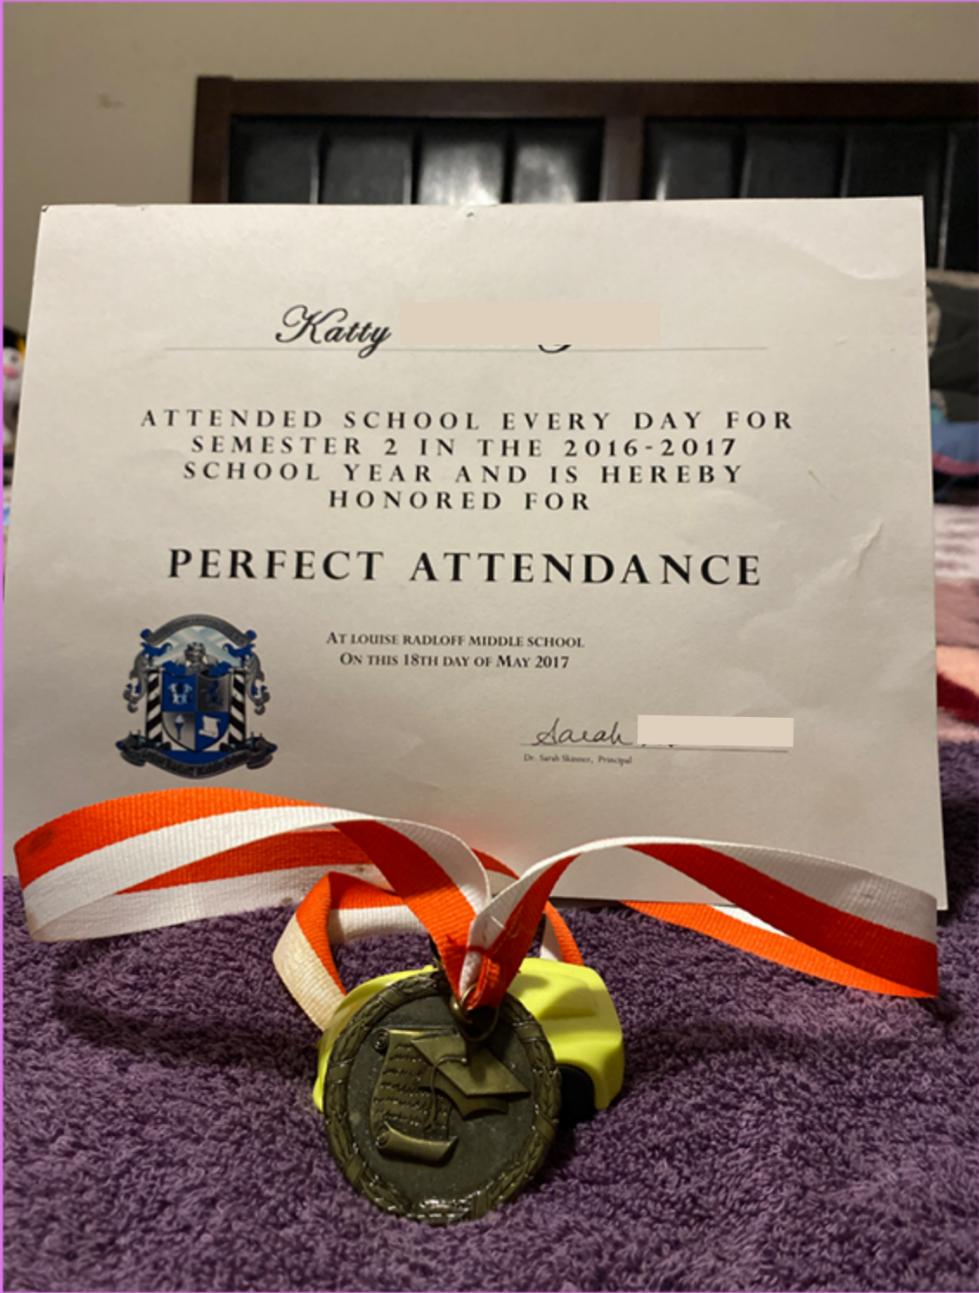

My name is Katty. I am originally from Honduras. I arrived in the USA in 2016 with lots of goals and plans, with the biggest dream being able to study. I began in 8th grade.

While staying at a foster home, I went to school there, which led me to receive the recognition you see here. It was the first of many achievements since arriving here since many good things came to my life.

Middle school was one of those extraordinary years since I was part of the Honor Roll at school for several things. I received some achievement certificates, which I dedicated to my mother, who is the woman I most admire and for whom I am who I am today.

I had the opportunity of participating in a club in middle school named “LYLA,” which allowed students to coexist and to learn and help other students with the language (English), and thanks to that, I was able to win a medal which I still hold to this day.

Mi Mama.

She has taught me to fight for what I want, and here is one of our biggest achievements, one of which is very important since it took so much time, dedication, and most of all, work. To see her so happy makes me feel whole, and though there are many more goals to achieve, this one was one of our greatest dreams, and we did it.

While I was in the process of reaching one of my greatest achievements, I lived many experiences like being part of a ballet class and being a student of “AIDE.” This opportunity is given to students in advanced classes, and the opportunity is given to help teachers and students. We learn a lot doing it and enjoy helping others.

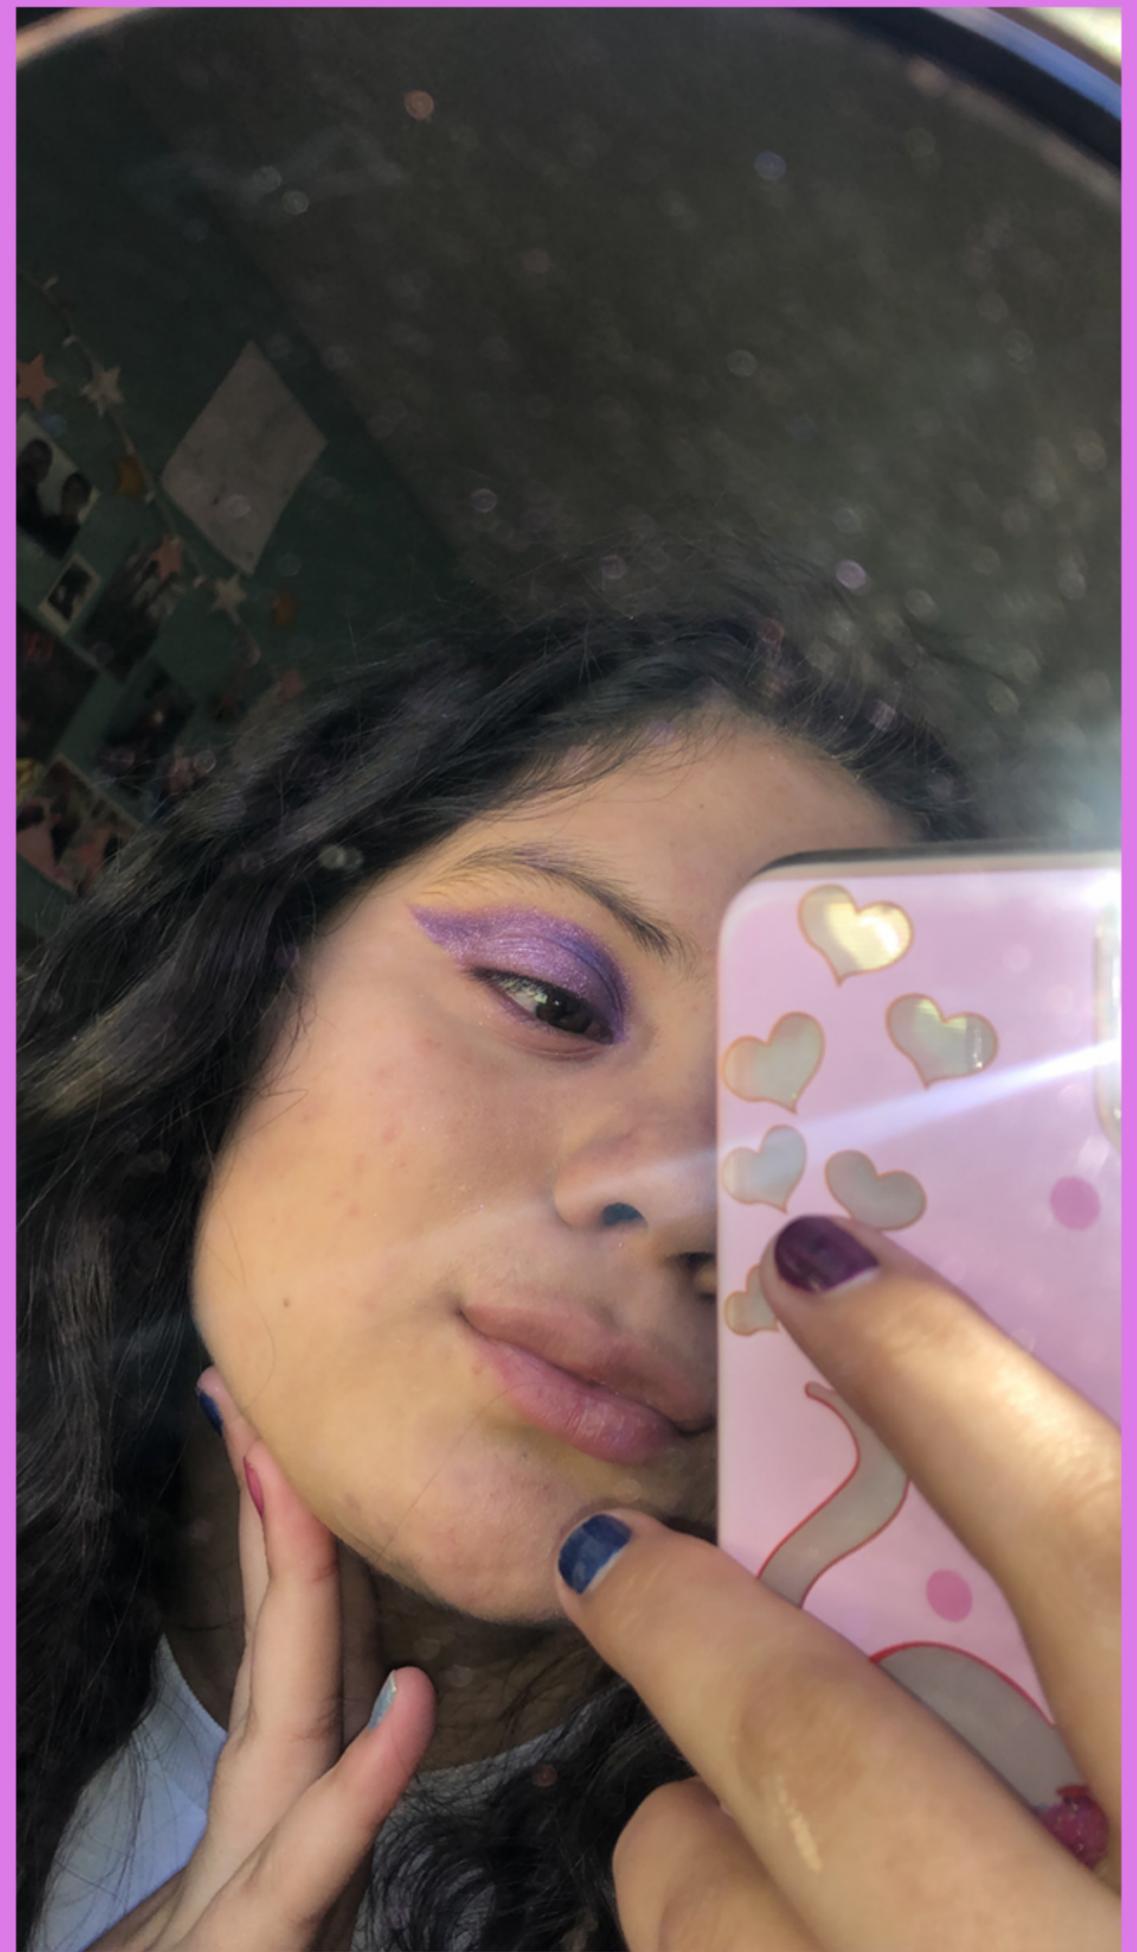

The great opportunity that I had to participate in my dance class, which was a combination of Ballet and Jazz, was incredible because we could do shows throughout different times in the school year and enjoy, as part of the dance we were doing and expressing.

We shared lots of stories and emotions, and we enjoyed each step. They were magical moments where we didn't feel the time, and we saw that all the practice time we had bore fruit, and it was a beautiful experience being a part of it.

I plan to continue with my studies, although with a bit of uncertainty since I haven't concentrated on my vocation, but I know that whatever decision I make, I'll make it far and of course with my mother by my side since she's my greatest example.
